Religion, What is It?

It is to go to church to-day,
To look devout and seem to pray
And ere the morrow's sun goes down,
Be dealing slander through the town?

Does every sanctimonious face
Denote a certain reign of grace?
Does not a mien that scolds at sin,
Oft veil hypocrisy within?

Is it to make our daily walk,
And of our own good deeds to talk,
Yet often practice secret crime
And thus mispend our precious time?

Is it for sect or creed to fight,
To call our zeal the rule of right,
When what we wish is, at the best,
To see our church excel the rest?

Is it to wear the christian dress,
And love to all mankind profess,
And treat with scorn the humble poor,
And bar against them every door?

Oh no! Religion means not this,
Its fruits more sweet and fairer is;
Its precept's this, to others do,
As you would have them do to you.

It grieves to hear an ill report,
And scorns with human woes to sport,
Of other's deeds it speaks no ill,
But tell's of good or keeps it still.

And does religion thus impart?
Then may its influence fill each heart.
Oft haste that blissful, blissful day,
When all the earth may own its sway.

Gen. Hancock published the following order upon taking command of the Fifth Military District:

New Orleans, November 29.—The following is General Hancock's order on taking command:

"HEAD'QRS, 5TH MILITARY DISTRICT, New Orleans, Nov. 29"

"Special Order, No. 40.

"1. In accordance with General Orders, No. 31, headquarters of the army, Adjutant's General's Office, Washington, D. C., August 27, 1867, Major General W. S. Hancock hereby assumes command of the Fifth Military District, and of the Department composed of the States of Louisiana and Texas.

"2. The General commanding is gratified to learn that peace and quiet reign in this Department. It will be his purpose to preserve this condition of things. As a means to this great end he regards the maintenance of the civil authorities in the faithful execution of the laws as the most efficient. Under existing circumstances, it is indispensable to repel force by force, and overthrow and destroy opposition to lawful authority; but where insurrectionary forces have been overthrown and peace established, and the civil authorities are ready and willing to perform their duties, the military power should cease to lead and the civil administration assume its natural and rightful dominion.

"Solemnly impressed with these views, the General announces that the great principles of American liberty still are the lawful inheritance of this people, and ever should be.

The right of trial by jury, the habeas corpus, the liberty of the press, freedom of speech, and the natural rights of persons and rights of property must be preserved. Free institutions, while they are essential to the prosperity and happiness of the people, always furnish the strongest inducements to peace and order. Crimes and offenses committed in this district must be referred to the regular civil authorities, and those tribunals will be supported in their lawful jurisdiction. Should there be violations of existing laws which are not inquired into by the civil magistrates, or should failures in the administration of justice by the courts be complained of, the cases will be reported to these headquarters, when such orders will be made as may be deemed necessary.

While the General thus indicates his purpose to respect the liberties of the people, he wishes all to understand that armed insurrections or forcible resistance to law will be instantly suppressed by arms.

By command of
Maj. Gen. W. S. Hancock.
W. G. Mitchell, Aid-de-camp.

The convention to-day passed resolutions inviting General Hancock and Governor Flanders to seats inside the bar, endorsing the removals made by General Mower, and in favor of the abolition of the cotton tax. Judge Taliaferro not being present, Mr. Ingram, colored, was appointed temporary chairman.

The next exciting political question in Congress, now that impeachment is settled, will be the enforcement of negro suffrage, by Federal legislation in all the States.

The Cruise of the Alabama--Admiral Semmes' Own Story.

During the late war the press of the country teemed with accounts of battles fought almost daily, and these reports were afterwards more elaborately given in the official reports of the commanding Generals on either side, thus giving us from day to day a very fair history of the battles fought on land during the four years of the great civil war.

But, while we pursued the public journals each day, detailing the victories of this chieftain or the other, on terra firma, the great scene of action on the high seas between the Federal fleet of war ships and the Confederate cruisers, was but slightly portrayed in the public prints. There was no telegraph to flash over the wires the victory or disaster of one ship or the other from the bosom of the broad ocean, and thus the naval history of the war has to this day remained unwritten and untold.

Since the days of Paul Jones, whose exploits in the American navy, during the war of 1812, have become as familiar as household words, no commander of a privateer is more entitled to the mantle of that great hero than the gallant Admiral Semmes, whose famous career with the Confederate cruiser Alabama will be handed down to posterity as long as the era of true chivalry and indomitable courage prevails in America.

To-night the gallant Admiral Semmes will board his noble ship, the famous Alabama, taking as passengers his immense audience, and set sail for the first cruise. We are unable to tell you, gentle reader, what you will learn on this voyage, but we predict for you the most eventful and thrilling trip of your life. The exciting and desperate chases, conflicts and captures that occurred during these memorable four years will be related by the principal actor in a plain and comprehensive story. Those who hear this great narrative from one of America's noblest seamen, can in after years call around them their grand children and relate the thrilling story of the Alabama, as told by her undaunted commander, the illustrious Admiral Raphael Semmes. The story of the cruiser Alabama has never been written or told up to this time. Let us all go and hear the true history of her great labors in the "lost cause" by her gallant commander, who buried himself in the bosom of the ocean with his noble ship flying her colors. We desire to see a large audience, again to-night, as this will be, no doubt, the most interesting and thrilling narrative ever delivered in Louisville.—Lou. Cou. Nov. 12.

From the Maysville Bulletin.

"The Once Powerful and Popular, But now Hated and Haunted Man."

Stephen G. Burbridge appeals to the people of Kentucky for sympathy. He publishes a correspondence between himself and J. S. Brisbin undertaking to excuse the lawless acts and sanguinary crimes in his reign of death and terror. Brisbin, who is reputed to be a Kentuckian, was the chief of staff, or principal satellite of the fallen despot. Every usurpation of power—all acts of tyranny—all deeds of violence—all felonies and all murders committed by Burbridge in his time of power, are presumed to have been within the knowledge and by the advice of the lesser wretch, Brisbin. His own letter as well as that of his late master, acknowledges as much.

Burbridge makes a witness of Brisbin.

In his hour of agony—at a time when remorse, as a hot iron, is seething his heart—when fallen from despotism—stripped of his gory robes—deserted by the dogs that fawned in his pathway—the hounds that fattened in his slime—when his very wife and children are wandering, mayhap, to be beyond the touch of his garments—when driven from society, a paupered, leperous, despised, and criminal outcast—he calls upon Brisbin, the last, the only man in the broad lands of his State upon whom he dare call, to shield him from the haunting cries of his own victims—the pangs of his own conscience and the misery of being despised.

His letter is an appeal, through his accomplice, to the people of Kentucky for sympathy—for an abatement of that rigorous hatred with which the memory of his crimes is everywhere held in the hearts of Kentuckians.

As well might Burbridge appeal to the rocks of the earth, as to the people upon whose rights he has trampled, and whose property he has usurped and destroyed, and whose liberty he has restrained.

As well might he appeal to the waves of the sea, as the mothers and friends of those children whose blood is yet red upon his hands and whose cries are still ringing in his ears.

The time was, and both Burbridge and Brisbin remember it, when the prayers and tears of women—mothers, wives and sisters—were offered at his feet in vain supplication for the lives of better men than either of these miscreants ever sought to be.

Can Burbridge recall the murder of young Hunt, of this county, a pure minded, pure hearted Christian boy, who had been guilty of no crime, and for whose life the people everywhere around him prayed in vain?

Can he remember the cruel murder of young Long, of this county, another good and guileless boy for whom more tears were shed at his feet than would purify his crimson garments?

Can he recall scores of other murders just as base and foul as these, and then ask the people of Kentucky for sympathy?

There is something in the suffering and misery of almost any human being to elicit sympathy. Even a crippled dog makes us pity him; but who can Burbridge?

Burbridge suffers every day a thousand deaths. He is haunted by a thousand phantoms. He feels the tears of women upon his feet. He hears volley after volley from the murderous squad that passed his victims to eternity. He hears the gurgle of blood in his sleep. He starts and shivers and weeps, and seeks in vain for rest. There can be no rest for such a soul either here or hereafter; and yet, who can pity him?

He put this cold hand into the breasts of his people, and tore their heart strings asunder. He laughed at tears, and laved his very body in the blood of the innocent. Who can pity him?

While he lives let him be trodden upon, for he has trodden on the hearts of mothers with shoes of iron.

While he lives let him be spurned as a reptile!

Let him be hated in his dying hour. And when he is dead let his memory be cherished to despise.

Melancholy Occurrence.

A very distressing affair happened at Gallatin, Tennessee, on Thursday. The following particulars are from a correspondent of the Journal, who is on a visit to Gallatin:

Lieutenant-Colonel Martin, late of the 1st Arkansas (Confederate) regiment, in company with his wife and a little child, arrived on the train from Nashville, due at 8 P. M., and stopped at Mrs. Lewis's boarding-house. About 10 o'clock his wife requested him to give her some chloroform, as she felt quite fatigued and her limbs pained very much. She also complained of having severe headache, and thought that the chloroform would relieve her. The Colonel saturated a large flannel rag with the chloroform and gave it to her, not thinking of what the result would be. He, with his little child, retired in another bed in the same room, and being quite tired soon fell asleep. At 5 o'clock this morning he awoke, and found his wife embraced in the cold arms of death. Of course the chloroform caused her death. A physician was called immediately, but it was too late. The feelings of the Colonel can be more easily imagined than described. He caught his dead wife around the neck and cried: "Oh! my dear wife, wake up! I know that you are not dead! Oh! horror! Have I killed you? Oh! my sweet wife!" Her remains were placed in a metallic case and forwarded to-night on the train to Lexington, Ky., where her relations live, and where the Colonel married her.

The lady, whose untimely death is spoken of in the above extract from the Louisville Journal, was a daughter of W. O. Harrison, Esq., of New Orleans, formerly a citizen of this place, and she is spoken of as one of the loveliest women ever born and raised in Lexington. The terrible grief of the afflicted husband showed no abatement even at the grave, but broke out in groans of agony as all that was mortal of his lovely wife were being lowered to their last resting place, which moved the most indifferent spectator to tears. He has the sympathy of the whole community in his great affliction.—Lex Gaz.

He who has lost his honor can lose nothing more.

It is pleasing to notice that the Jacobins at Washington have been snubbed, and that they have ceased their "hue and cry" for more blood. In their work of ruin they proposed to cut off the official head of President Johnson, by impeachment, for supposed high crimes. These crimes consisted simply in his determined opposition to radicalism. He believed that bondholders and niggers were entitled to no more rights under the constitution than white people. The Radical Jacobins have been of the opinion that all the privileges should be given up entirely, to that class of people—the poorest and the richest, and that the middle class of white people should enslave themselves, and were expected only to toil and pay taxes. The New York Tribune, the organ of the Republican party, said not long since, that their party owed an immense debt to the Freedmen of the South, and to the bondholders. They owed nothing to the soldier, who gave his time, his fortune and his blood to sustain the government. He should be satisfied with the privilege of dying, and being considered worthy to stand in perilous places, and receiving an occasional smile from leading free-niggers, and such bounds as Sumner, Wade & Co. The gratitude which the Republican party has displayed toward white soldiers, is in keeping with the loss of the confidence and support which such men have seen proper to withdraw, and as they have been heard from at the ballot-box, in tones so loud that they cannot be misunderstood, the effect of their rebuke is seen in the acts of Congress. This is why our congressional representatives have been admitted to their seats in that body, and this is why confiscation, and all the evils that hell itself could hatch up, have not been put upon the people to satisfy Jacobin hatred.

We believe radical republicanism is dead, and that its rotten carcass will be laid beneath the clouds of the valley next November. The Democracy have captured their strongest points. Boston, the hub of the universe, has fallen into good hands, and Pittsburg recently went over to the Democracy, "horse, foot and dragoon," and there is not a place that a radical can set his foot down in safety, and say that this is our people. The people of the Western States are Democratic, and they will continue Democratic at all times and under all circumstances. Very many are that way, because Democracy differ in every particular from radicalism. All true Democrats are good and law-abiding, constitution loving citizens, and they oppose persecution because it is a spirit engendered by the fiends. They give themselves up to a spirit of right and justice, and with a conscience void of offense, believe in giving respectability to their party, perpetuity to their government and prosperity to the people.

Cols. Worley and Barkley, of that popular house, the Southern Hotel, Lexington, were in Cynthiana yesterday.

General Hancock.

This gentleman has recently assumed the command of the Fifth Military District, consisting of the States of Louisiana and Texas. He seems to be a man with principles of the right stripe, at least we should judge so from the order which he issued as soon as he assumed command. We publish this order on our first page this week. It has a jingle about it that speaks to the reader in a tone of sympathy for an oppressed people, and carries that power and force with it, which gives assurance that he means just what he says. We are not among that class who are ready to idolize any man, who may choose to do right because he feels that way—or shout vivas to the man who observes the constitution and laws of the land, simply because he is educated that way; but we speak of this man, Gen. Hancock, and his acts, as an officer of the government, because he has had the manliness to act like an officer of a government, instead of a party—because he has refused to permit himself to be used by the radical jacobins to advance their interest, or their unprincipled designs upon the people.

He has, we understand, undone all that was transacted by Sheridan and Mower—has refused to let negroes sit on juries—put white men back in offices where they have been discharged for the purpose of making room for negroes. He has, in short, commenced enforcing the laws of the country, for the benefit of white people as well as negroes.

For this he is entitled to our respect and confidence. He is gaining it from the people of Louisiana, as the papers report that when he entered the New Orleans theatre, not long since, that all the people rose up and gave him a hearty welcome.

We hope his example may be followed by others in command, down South.

The Poor of Cynthiana.

We feel it our duty to call the attention of our citizens to the fact, that within the corporation limits of our little city, that there are some at least, probably many, who are to-day suffering for the necessities of life. This is the trying season of the year upon the poor. Everything is high priced, and fuel especially, is very scarce. Those of us who have never felt the want of things necessary to secure our comfort, know nothing of the terrible story of poverty. These poor people are as good by nature as we are, and probably better by practice. It is no fault of theirs that they are in this uncomfortable condition. Let us see to it, then, that they are provided for at once. Let every good citizen of our town who is enjoying comfort, contribute a dollar or even a half dollar per month, and there will be no suffering from poverty in our midst. Let a committee be appointed at once, to investigate the condition of the poor, and report the amount of money that will be required per month to alleviate their sufferings, and we know the people of Cynthiana well enough, to say that the money will be most certainly forthcoming. Let us act at once in this matter, and we will be applauded by men and blessed of God.

State Democratic Convention.

The Central Executive Committee, at Frankfort, have appointed the 22d of February, 1868, for holding a State Convention, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor, to be elected next August. The committee have appointed Frankfort as the place of meeting, and the 22d comes on Saturday—a most unfortunate day—as the people will not go and be compelled to remain in the capital on the Sabbath.

We want our County Executive Committee to call our people together and send the best men we have to Frankfort, Saturday or any other day.

Go to J. H. Shawhan's if you want any clothing, where you will find the largest and best assortment of clothing ever brought to Cynthiana.

With reference to the death of Thos. McDonald, we give the following statement which we copy from the Paris Citizen:

Thomas McDonald came to my office between three and four o'clock on Wednesday the 11th inst., and inhaled chloroform to have a tooth extracted. I gave him a very light dose, he being perfectly conscious all the time, and he expressed himself as being perfectly delighted with the operation, thanked me very kindly, and left my room seemingly as well as when he came in. Respectfully,

R. M. Adair.

Soon after the above occurrence, he left the city for Kiser Station in his buggy, Jas. Kellar, Sr., and Don Thomas, met him about half mile of Kiser Station. He stopped his horse and held something to his mouth, Kellar remarking, "that man's taking a drink." On coming up to him, they recognized him, and he pleasantly returned the salutation. Arriving at the house of John Kiser, he complained of being quite ill, stated that he had taken chloroform to have a tooth extracted, and that he did not believe he would ever recover. He lay down, but shortly growing worse, Dr. Eades of Riddells Mills was sent for, but did not arrive until after the unfortunate man had breathed his last. His symptoms rapidly assumed an alarming character, and every effort was made by his friends to relieve him, but in vain. Overpowered with a desire to sleep, thus indicating a dangerous exhibition of some powerful opiate, he begged those who were endeavoring to rouse him from his lethargic state to let him rest in peace; but they continued their efforts until about three o'clock in the morning, when he died.

The following letter was written in pencil, to his wife, was found upon his person after his death. The letter was first dated at Paris, but the word "Paris" was erased, and "On the road" substituted. Mr. Davis, the agent at this place, supposes that the letter was written in his office:

The Adams Express Company.
On the Road, Dec. 11, 1867.

Dear Wife: I had my teeth drawn, and I believe I will die from the effects of it. I owe Drexelius, tailor, at Covington, for two coats and one suit of pants, $45—I owe Hill & Smith's bill; I owe Express company for old horse, $50. I owe Hildreth for wheat I bought of him. Get him to take back stock and also the farm. Dick Brown has got my will. Call for it. Jim Kiser will attend to anything you want done, because he is a friend of mine and yours.

T. J. McDonald.

If I die from this you are entitled to my insurance, as it was an accident.

A coroner's jury was empaneled this morning, and the above facts being elicited, with the additional circumstance that none of the morphia nor elixir of opium was found upon the person of the deceased, the following verdict was rendered:

We, of the jury, summoned to hold an inquest on the body of Thomas J. McDonald, lying at the house of John Kiser, in the county of Bourbon, State of Kentucky, believe that he came to his death by an opiate administered by his own hands, on the 11th day of December, 1867.

B. F. Pullen, Foreman,
Jno. Stewart,
J. W. Davis,
R. S. Morrow,
Newton Fry,
J. G. Craddock.

Mr. McDonald was a gentleman of fine personal appearance, portly and well formed, and affable and pleasant in manner and conversation. He was about 36 years of age, and was supposed to be worth $15,000 to $20,000. He had married a daughter of Mr. Allen Kiser, who died, leaving one child. He afterwards married another daughter of the same gentleman, who also has one child. His life was insured for about $5,000—we do not know in what company.

A Rich Joke.

The Boston Traveler, a Radical paper, in its eagerness to abuse Democrats and defame the South, rushes into the error of not only killing Burbridge but also of classing him as a rebel in the following remarks:

Burbridge, who was of some note as a rebel partisan chief, died recently in St. Louis. A Kentucky editor, who criticised his conduct while holding a command in that State, was shot by Burbridge's brother. Such will be the common course all over the country, should the Democrats be restored to power, as they are, the patrons and supporters of rebels and believe in the sacredness of rebellion which they would not allow to be condemned or its agent criticised.

The occasion was certainly one for moralizing, and we recommend this paper to correct its error of fact and apply the moral. If Burbridge's brother shoots a Kentucky editor for criticising his conduct while holding a command in this State, when the rebel Democracy as it is called, control the State by a 40,000 majority, what would become of such critics if the Radicals should again reinstate Burbridge in power? If it was the intention of the paper to cast a reflection upon the Confederate cause by calling Burbridge a rebel, his point was well taken. No greater indignity could have been put upon it than to call him a "rebel partisan chief." The South had Morgans, Forrests, Sturges, and Hampton, but no Burbridges, Butlers, or Burnside's. Curse her, chain her, trample upon her, but save her from this degradation.

The Great Medical Annual.

Hostetter's United States Almanac for 1868, for distribution, gratis, throughout the United States and all civilized countries of the Western Hemisphere, will be published about the first of January, and all who wish to understand the true philosophy of health should read and ponder the valuable suggestion it contains. In addition to an admirable medical treatise on the causes, prevention and cure of a great variety of diseases, it embraces a large amount of information interesting to the merchant, mechanic, the miner, the farmer, the planter, and professional man, and the calculations have been made for such meridians and latitudes as are most suitable for a correct and comprehensive National Calendar. The nature, uses, and extraordinary sanitary effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the staple tonic and alterative of more than half the Christian World, are fully set forth in its pages, which are also interspersed with valuable receipts, humorous anecdotes and other instructive and amusing reading matter, original and selected. Among the Annals to appear with the opening of the year, this will be one of the most useful, and may be had for the asking. Send for copies to the Central Manufacturing, at Pittsburg, or to the nearest agent for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The Bitters are sold in every city, town and village of the United States.

POWDERS!!!

THIS PREPARATION IS THE DISCOVERY of the Rev. J. W. Foland, formerly pastor of the Baptist Church in Goffstown, N. H., and a man deeply beloved by that denomination throughout New England. He was obliged to leave the pulpit and study medicine to save his own life, and his Magic Powders are one of the most wonderful discoveries of modern times. It is the great Liver and Bilious remedy, which completely throws in the shade all other discoveries in medicine; and it affords him much gratification that they receive the unanimous approbation of all who have tested them. The Magic Bilious Powders are a positive cure for Liver Complaint, in its most aggravated forms, and an immediate corrector of all Bilious Derangements. Excellent for headache, constipation, pimples, blotches, a sallow skin, drowsiness, dizziness, heartburn, palpitation and a most wonderful cure and preventive for Fever and Ague. (We advise all who are troubled with this fearful malady to always keep the Powders on hand for immediate use.) Here are a few important particulars: 1st.—They are the Great Specific for all Bilious Affections. 2d.—They are the only known remedy that will cure Liver Complaint. 3d.—They are the only known remedy that will cure Constipation. 4th.—The Powders are so thorough in their operation that one package will be all that the majority of those using them will require to effect a cure. 5th.—They are a mild and pleasant yet the most effectual cathartic known. 6th.—They are the cheapest and best medicine extant, as they can be sent by mail to any part of the world for the price, 50 cents. Circulars, containing certificates, information, &c., sent to any part of the world free of charge. Sold by all druggists, or by mail on application to C. G.
